To Whomsoever It May Concern

Mr. D. Lokesh Goud, is known to me for the past three months since he joined ICAR-IIRR, Hyderabad as an intern and underwent training on the topic of 'Precision nitrogen management for sustainable rice cultivation'. He is acquainted with all the practices and techniques deployed in the field and developed a sound understanding of the subject in due course of time with a positive bent on academics. His interactions are meaningful and deserve encouragement. I am sure that he would be a valuable asset to any institute. I place him among one of the best students who have come in contact with me in my professional career as a research scientist and teacher.

I am confident that he will be a good student at your institution. I recommend that his candidature may be considered positively for master's degree admission.

To the best of my knowledge and belief, he bears a sound moral character.

I wish him all the best.
